

theWattSpot.com

Especially for ComEd Customers

April 2007

Now it's even easier to make the most of hourly electricity prices with theWattSpot.com, the new robust website exclusively for you, as a ComEd Residential Real-Time Pricing (RRTP) program participant.

At theWattSpot.com, you can keep on top of ComEd's residential real-time hourly prices, their projected prices for the next 24 hours, as well as your ComEd RRTP account – just in time for summer, when prices spike higher and controlling your energy usage is more important than ever. The ESPP pilot was a success and we're confident that you will enjoy this new web portal!

Best of all, using theWattSpot.com is simple: just visit the site, click "SIGN IN," then type your login info as follows:

User name: Your 10-digit ComEd account number (with leading zeros)

Password: The same password that you currently use at energybilldata.com

NOTE: If you were a participant of the Energy Smart Pricing Plan (ESPP), but have not previously accessed your account at energybilldata.com, please call theWattSpot.com's call center at 1-866-WATTSPOT in order to get a temporary password. If you have recently enrolled in the ComEd Residential Real-Time Pricing program, but have not received your account activation notice, your program participation is still pending. Please know that we are working hard with ComEd to activate all eligible pending accounts.

SIGN IN to theWattSpot.com now! It's our way of saying thanks for participating in the ComEd Residential Real-Time Pricing program - and a new, easier way for you to take even greater control of your energy use.

Sincerely,
Sky Filippi, program manager
